To ensure prevention representation in the final product, the Washington Thriving manager will provide background, updates, and information on opportunities for input and engagement with the development of the statewide prenatal to 25 behavioral health strategic plan. Washington Thriving is a collaborative statewide effort to develop a strategic plan for equitable behavioral health for children, youth, young adults from before they are born through age 25, and their families and caregivers. This ambitious process prioritizes collaborative engagement between individuals with lived or living experience and decision makers who will act to make the vision a reality.

3:15-4 p.m.
