Environmental Prevention Overview

What are Environmental Strategies?

- Environmental efforts seek to make change on the large scale of the community.
 - Focus on policy and policy change.
 - Individual programs seek outcomes related to individual participants.
 - Focus on behavior and behavior change.
- Environmental strategies reach the community at various stages of human development.
 - Individual programs are geared toward a specific stage of human development.

What are Environmental Strategies?

continued

- Environmental strategies impact more people than individual programs.
- “Norms”, “regulations”, & “access/availability” are common ways to categorize environmental initiatives.

(CSAP, 2005 and CADCA, 2008)

Community level change strategies seek to:

1. Limit access to substances;
2. Change the culture and context within which decisions about substance use are made; and or
3. Shift the consequences associated with youth substance use.

“Evidence exists that well-conceived and implemented policies at the local, state and national levels can reduce community level alcohol, tobacco, and other drug problems.” (Drug-Free Communities Support Program, Office of National Drug Control Policy (ONDCP), RFA 2015)

Essential to Effectiveness

- “Successful prevention is inherently interdisciplinary.”
National Research Council and Institute of Medicine. (2009)
- Drawing on a variety of different strategies at multiple levels have led to effective tobacco control and reductions in underage drinking.
National Research Council and Institute of Medicine. (2009)
- “Controlling the environment around schools and other areas where youth gather helps to reinforce strong community norms against substance abuse.”
CSAP Principles of Substance Abuse Prevention. (2001)

Just What Is Environmental Prevention, Anyway?

Environmental strategies in a community seek:

1. To bring about system-level change (including physical space, local community policies, availability of alcohol, drugs, and tobacco, etc.)

In order

2. To reduce substance abuse problems at the population level. That is Public Health. **

* Both conditions must be met.

The Underage Drinking Enforcement Training Center presents

CONDUCTING COMPLIANCE CHECK OPERATIONS
A Distance Learning Course

This FREE four-hour online training course provides basic guidelines and operational information on reducing sales of alcohol to underage purchasers through compliance investigations of alcohol retailers. The course presents rationales for carrying out these investigations and emphasizes the importance of reducing youth access to alcohol thereby reducing youth related crime in the community and improving the quality of life.

COURSE OBJECTIVE:

COURSE OUTCOMES:

- Participants who complete the course will be able to:
 - Understand the issues related to underage drinking and the

Alcohol Purchase Surveys

urchase surveys involve sending young adults who appear underage into stores to alcohol. Communities, local coalitions, and other groups carry out the purchase order to gather data on how easily available alcohol is for minors and who is selling to The surveys provide information that can be used to strengthen targeted efforts to to underage drinking? As a strategy, alcohol purchase surveys are intended to bolster

Policy as an Umbrella

Policy is:

- An umbrella strategy that can be used to initiate implementation in many strategies.
- Most successful when efforts are carried out by the coalition or committee.

Today we will talk about 4 policy-related strategies:

- Alcohol Advertising Restrictions (reduce perception of availability)
- School Policy (reduce access)
- Social Host Liability (reduce access)
- Safe & Festive Community Events (reduce access and change community norms)

Outdoor Alcohol Advertising Policy

- Outdoor advertising rules say alcohol billboards located within 500 feet (1.5 football fields) of schools, churches, government buildings or playgrounds can be removed. Do you have any of those in your community?

School Policy

- Concrete policies which provide for sanctions against use of alcohol and tobacco use on campus.
 - Traditional sanctions of the past consist of expulsion and suspension.
 - Now the focus is turning to keeping youth engaged & alternative forms of discipline.

Pacific Institute for Research and Evaluation. Calverton, MD

Social Host / Liability

- A strategy to reduce access.
- Social Host ordinances focus on the setting where drinking occurs regardless of who provides the alcohol.
- Provides law enforcement with additional tools that go beyond the Revised Code of Washington (RCW 66.44.270), which prohibits providing (also known as furnishing) alcohol to minors.

Safe & Festive Community Events

- Various efforts and policies to consider if involved in planning community events, including:
 - Establish non-drinking areas for families and youth;
 - Ban consumption in parking drinking;
 - Hire adequate security;
 - Alcohol vendor training to
 - Prevent patrons from leaving;
 - Alcohol supply carefully monitored by an adult.

Restrictions at Community Events

Alcohol restrictions at community events include policies that control the availability and use of alcohol at public venues, such as concerts, street fairs, and sporting events. Such restrictions can be implemented voluntarily by event organizers or through local legislation¹⁶. These restrictions may reduce sales to underage purchasers¹⁶ and are also intended to reduce alcohol-related problems such as traffic crashes, vandalism, fighting, and other public disturbances. Alcohol restrictions at these events can range from a total ban on alcohol consumption to the posting of warning posters that detail the risks associated with consuming alcohol. Examples of restrictions include: non-drinking areas for families and youth, limiting alcohol sponsorships, prohibiting drinking by servers, limiting cup sizes, limiting the number of servings per person, or requiring responsible beverage service training.¹⁷

Advocacy and Public Health

- Advocacy is used to promote an issue in order to influence policy-makers and encourage social change.
- Advocacy in public health plays a role in educating the public, swaying
- Advocacy assumes that people have rights, and that those rights are enforceable.
- Public opinion or influencing policy-makers. *

* There are restrictions for people who receive federal funding. Persons paid with federal funding cannot advocate for a specific policy or change. They can provide information about policy options and they can recruit their volunteer coalition members to advocate.

- ONLY considered Social Norms Marketing if individuals are designed

The social norms approach to prevention gathers credible data from a target population and then, using various health communication strategies, consistently tells that population the truth about actual norms of health, protection, and the avoidance of risk behaviors. With repeated exposure to a variety of positive, data-based messages, misperceptions that help to sustain problem behavior are reduced, and a greater proportion of the population begins to act in accord with the more accurately perceived norms of health, protection, and safety¹. Misperceptions of peer norms have consistently been shown to be correlated with individual risk behavior. Research shows that correcting these misperceptions, to be in line with peers' actual behaviors, results in decreased risk behavior among target audiences² – especially college students³. A recent study evaluating a statewide campaign for young adults found the social norms marketing campaign to be effective at reducing drinking and driving⁴.

Excellence in Prevention Strategy List

Welcome to the Excellence in Prevention strategies list and search page. This page provides detailed information about direct service and environmental prevention strategies. Programs and strategies in this list must be shown in at least two studies to produce intended results. All programs listed include substance abuse prevention as an area of interest.

The strategies described in this list come from three primary resources, the National Registry for Evidence-based Programs and Practices (NREPP), a separate list of programs identified as evidence-based by the State of Oregon, and "Scientific Evidence for Developing a Logic Model on Underage Drinking: A Reference Guide for Community Environmental Prevention."

Advertising Restrictions

At the aggregate level, a central focus has been on trends in alcohol advertising, per capita consumption and drinking problems. Only a few studies have considered the effects of alcohol advertising restrictions on alcohol consumption or problems.

Community Trials Intervention to Reduce High-Risk Drinking

Community Trials Intervention To Reduce High-Risk Drinking is a multi-component, community-based program developed to alter the alcohol use patterns and related problems of people of all ages. The program incorporates a set of environmental interventions that assist communities in (1) using zoning and municipal regulations to restrict alcohol access through alcohol outlet density control; (2) enhancing responsible beverage service by training, testing, and assisting beverage servers and retailers in the development of policies and procedures to reduce intoxication and driving after drinking; (3) increasing law enforcement and sobriety checkpoints to raise actual and perceived risk of arrest for driving after drinking; (4) reducing youth access to alcohol by training alcohol retailers to avoid selling to minors and those who provide alcohol to minors; and (5) forming the coalitions needed to implement and support the interventions that address each of these prevention components. The program aims to help communities reduce alcohol-related accidents and incidents of violence and the injuries that result from them.
