

Teen Pregnancy Prevention

Helping youth
have happier,
healthier lives.

Not all Washington state schools provide sexual education to students, and not all parents talk to their children about sexual health. The Washington State Personal Responsibility Education Program (WA PREP) helps fill in the gaps.

WA PREP partners with schools, community-based organizations, and detention centers to offer interventions proven to reduce teen pregnancy. The program's evidence-based curriculum covers abstinence, birth control, and STDs, along with youth development topics such as healthy relationships and parent-child communication.

To learn more or to participate, visit <http://waprepforhealthyouth.org>.

